Wanzer Brings His Message of Acceptance To North

Left: Senior Katharyn Sabens introduced Kevin Wanzer to the student body. Right: Wanzer chats with students following the presentation.

Nationally known comedian Kevin Wanzer is a dynamic speaker that uses comedy to reach his audience the importance of caring and acceptance. He uses personal life stories to teach people that it is ok to be themselves. Wanzer entertained North High school students as he explained how important it is to accept one another and help people work through their personal problems. September is Suicide Prevention month, the North staff wants all students to know that they have people at the school that care about them and want to help them succeed in school and beyond. Programs such as Wanzer's is just one of the many ways North is reaching out to help students.

SADD has Activities Planned for September

The North chapter of SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions) will hand out colored strips of paper to the student body, staff and faculty starting Monday September 12 during lunch. "My Life Counts and My Friends' Lives Count!" will be printed on them. SADD members will be asking everyone to sign the strip of paper and then strips will be linked together to form a chain. The project is being called "Don't Break the Chain of Life."

SADD is hoping that every student and staff member will add a link to the Chain of Life.

September is Suicide Prevention Month, there will also be an education/awareness table with pamphlets and other information on suicide warnings signs as well as where and how to get help if needed.

SADD is also working on notes of kindness that they plan to place on lockers.
